Finding Focus

This template is designed to provide you guidance for finding focus. Co-designing the core focus of your Policy Lab is essential for a seamless cooperation where the aim is clear for all participating members.

In order to Find Focus, fill out the following template!
This template can be used in a co-design workshop. Your team does not have to agree on all the details, but you need to agree on the main points so that your focus does not get lost.

Expected duration of session:	60-90 mins
Participants' name:	Participants' expertise:
1.
2.
3.
4.

1. In order to identify the three main elements of your core focus, answer the following questions:

1.1. What is the pressing societal concern that needs resolution?

1.2. What is a clear policy opportunity that emerges from this situation?

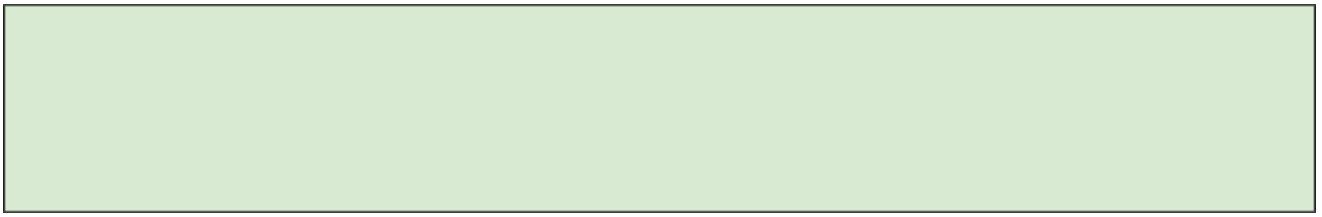
1.3. What knowledge do you need in order to have insight and understand the problem clearly?



2. In order to have a clear, concise figure that guides your process, fill out the following diagram. This will identify the Core Focus of your Policy Lab!

Guiding questions for each segment:

2.1. Policy Urgency

What is the policy environment of the issue?
What is the political environment of the issue?
Is there a deadline that puts time pressure on the policy?

2.2. Research Relevance

What is the knowledge gap that the Policy Lab can address?
What research needs to be conducted to understand the issue thoroughly?

2.3. Societal Concern

Who are the actors and communities affected by the issue?
